On Wednesday, September 18, the PA CareerLink Jefferson County and the Jefferson County Development Council held a Brookville Area Job Fair and Veterans Resource Expo at the Heritage House in Brookville. PA CareerLink and Jefferson County Veteran Affairs sent out email notifications and postcards to participants and advertised in the local newspapers and multiple local radio stations. Renda Radio provided tickets to the Pittsburgh Zoo to give away as door prizes. 23 employers and service organizations were present, as well as flu shots for all veterans provided by the James E. Van Zandt VA Medical Center.

WIOA Business Service Consultant Marsha Beatty and BWPO staff David Slagle worked together to launch a pilot program where participants will be able to attend select PA CareerLink workshops via videoconferencing at their local library. This is important, as Jefferson County is a very rural area and lack of transportation is frequently cited as a barrier for many participants. Some participants in the county live more than 30 miles from their closest PA CareerLink center. At launch, the public libraries in Brookville and Summerville are hosting the workshops, with plans to expand to libraries in Reynoldsville, Brockway, and Sykesville.
